The Workforce Development Council is an attached agency to the State of Hawaii Department of Labor and Industrial Relations (DLIR). As is stated in HRS Chapter 202, the council is a 41-member advisory commission comprised of both public and private-sector representatives, who are selected by the Governor to serve in staggered 4-year terms on the basis of their interest in and knowledge of workforce development programs in Hawaii and how to support economic development throughout the state.

DLIR Workforce Development Division (WDD) website <https://labor.hawaii.gov/wdd/>

Web site assists job seekers, workers, and industries. Provides a free referral and placement service that links qualified job seekers with employers, HireNet Hawaii. Visit the website to learn more about apprenticeships, job fairs and more. WDD also strives to develop and maintain various partnerships with the private sector to identify emerging employment trends, technological advances, declining industries and economic issues. The division develops grant proposals in coordination with other agencies to carry out employment and training program activities and services.

DLIR Unemployment Division: <https://labor.hawaii.gov/ui/> or <https://portal.ehawaii.gov/residents/jobs-and-employment/unemployment/>

Unemployment Insurance (UI) is a state-operated program that provides temporary financial assistance to qualified workers who are unemployed through no fault of their own and meet the legal requirements of the law. Benefits are based on your past employment and attachment to the labor market rather than on your financial situation.
